Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Saturday 06 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sleet, snow, most persistent in east. Drier, brighter in west.

Today:
Cold and mostly cloudy with further showers, prolonged this morning across eastern Scotland with snow, mainly on higher ground. Western Scotland will be drier and brighter. The showers in the east turning increasingly to snow to low levels this afternoon.

Tonight:
Rather cloudy over eastern Scotland with scattered sleet and snow showers. Mainly dry in the west with clear periods. A cold night everywhere with a frost and icy stretches.

Sunday:
Brighter day with some sunshine, best in the west. There will be scattered snow showers in the east with a few getting across to the west. Bitterly cold easterly winds.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Cold easterly winds will continue to bring scattered snow showers into eastern Scotland. Many western areas will stay dry with sunny spells and just the odd light snow shower.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.